BETTER LEADERS. BETTER LIFE.
AbidingStrategy.com

Some of the most important leadership lessons I ever learned came from watching my dad live. He taught me that small habits make a big difference. That our behavior matters. And that WHO we are is even more important than what we do.

Today, I'm honored to share those lessons with you through my newest book, Leadership, Love & Legacy: Lessons from Dad, now available for purchase.

Dad served our country for 20 years in the United States Army, retiring as a Lieutenant Colonel. Announcing this book on Veterans Day is one way I can honor his service and the example he set throughout his life.
To all who have served, and the families who have supported them: thank you.

From growing up on a farm to defending our nation, raising a family, and helping run a church, Dad demonstrated his values through everyday actions. This book brings together his stories and the practical lessons I carry into my work as a business coach. Through family photographs, memories, and reflections from people who loved him, you'll meet the man whose wisdom continues to shape how I lead.

Whether you lead a business, a nonprofit, a classroom, or a household, these lessons offer something you can put into practice: building character, developing discipline, caring for others, and recognizing the influence of your daily example.
As one client so beautifully said, "Through Lisa, her father's lessons are not just remembered; they are multiplied."

Customer testimonials :

"Titles fade and metrics change, but the effect we have on others, by helping them grow, remains. Lisa has taken the gifts her father gave her and carried them forward, turning them into something that now changes lives. I am grateful to have witnessed this up close, and I have no doubt it will stay with you, too."
